A DISMAL RECORD

The record of our exports and imports for September has just been issued by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. From an agricultural standpoint, it is probably the most dismal record that has been written in the last 50 years. In the month of September the United States, for the first time since the Civil War, if not for all time, imported more farm products than it exported.

That sounds incredible in view of the fact that ever since the West was opened immediately following the Civil War, the United States bore the proud title of being the granary of the world.

Under the New Deal policies of the last two years, however, agricultural exports have been steadily declining, and our agricultural imports have been steadily increasing. The policies of the AAA are swiftly destroying the farmer's foreign markets and gradually destroying his domestic markets.

The month of September shows our exports of animals and edible animal products, meat products, dairy products, lard, and fish, to have amounted to $9,387,000, while our imports of the same articles amounted to $10,253,000.

The exports of vegetable food products and beverages, grains and grain preparations, fodder and feeds, vegetables and vegetable preparations and edible vegetable oils, amounted to $21,978,000, while our imports of the like articles were more than double that—amounting to $48,161,000.

When the American farmer sees the imports of agricultural products both raw and finished, are nearly twice the exports of like products, he should begin to do some serious thinking regarding the policies of an Administration which makes this possible.

Melvin Purvis Offered Job As Film Star Guard

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 2—UP—Melvin Purvis, erstwhile Chicago Department of Justice agent who directed the "rubbing out" of John Dillinger and other gangsters, has been offered the job of protecting Hollywood's fair citizens.

Jack La Rue, actor, revealed today that Purvis was being sought to head the Motion Picture Protective League, an organization designed to protect stars from blackmailers and "badger-game" racketeers.

"While the police and the District Attorney's office always have done a good job protecting us," said La Rue, "we feel that Purvis probably could nip most plots before they developed."

PARIS HOPES for peace and prepares for war. Here a gas-proof chamber, bomb proof and air tight, is being built in one of the courtyards of the Hotel de Ville, the city hall of the French capital. Possibility of war is in no wise discounted by the French and the shelter is one of the many emergency protections against an enemy air raid.

Gale Damage Is Repaired In Bay Area

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2—UP—An early touch of winter, west of the Rockies, was in milder mood tonight, with clear cold weather replacing the violent winds, heavy rains and freezing temperatures which for 24 hours held the Pacific Coast in tight grip.

As the center of the storm passed over Utah on its way east, agriculturists, shipping interests, utility companies and city and state highway crews set to work repairing the damage it had left in its wake.

FIVE DEATHS

The property damage will run into millions, preliminary estimates said. The life toll was not heavy, although the San Francisco bay area reported five deaths from storm conditions such as slippery streets and falling trees.

Shipping still moved cautiously in San Francisco bay, where a barge carrying 100 tons of steel and several hundred cases of dynamite

Fingerprinting Of Rum Dealers Urged By Solon

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2—UP—The State Senate and Assembly Liquor Committees at a meeting here today advocated fingerprinting of liquor license applicants, reduction of the number of permits and increase in fees.

Meeting with Board of Equalization officials, including Orfa Jean Shontz, Southern California board member, and Robert Brown, local administrator, the committees suggested fingerprintnig as part of a program designed to stiffen regulations governing permits. Applicants also would be required to make sworn statements before notaries under the plan advocated by Senator Ralph Swing of San Bernardino, chairman of the Senate committee.

The two groups decided to meet again in San Francisco January 17.

HOT CARGO EMBARGO IS IN DISPUTE

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2—UP—A strike in Gulf of Mexico ports and a dispute among longshoremen in Seattle [illegible] the Pacific Coast maritime industry tonight into a renewal of a "hot cargo" dispute, which at times has threatened to break into a general shipping strike.

Longshoremen at San Pedro, the Port of Los Angeles, refused to unload "unfair" cargo brought in by the S. S. Katrina Luckenbach from New Orleans. They protested it had been loaded by a non-union strike-breaking crew of longshoremen while International Longshoremen's Association members in the Gulf area were on strike.

EMBARGO IS HIT

In Seattle the longshoremen refused to handle flour from the Fisher Flour Mills where the warehousemen and cereal workers' union members are on strike.

The Waterfront Employers' Association of San Francisco, which generally speaks for entire Pacific Coast shipowners group, indicated it considered both embargoes contrary to capital-labor agreement and intended to cite the longshoremen for breaking the contract.

BOYCOTT CALLED

The embargo war over Gulf of Mexico cargoes broke out on the West Coast two days before a nation wide boycott called by Joseph P. Ryan national president of the I. L. A. William Lewis, Pacific district president, issued the order which tied up the Katrina Luckenbach while Ryan was [illegible]

New Deal Will Be An Issue In State Elections

By UNITED PRESS

President Roosevelt and his recovery program Saturday night overshadowed local issues as voters in scattered states prepared for vital off-year elections on Tuesday.

Bitterest fights centered in New York State, Pennsylvania and Kentucky with contests of lesser national interest scheduled in New Jersey, Virginia and Mississippi.

In the three major battles, national issues were injected into State campaigns. Political experts watched closest for evidence for a swing in the electorate toward or away from the New Deal.

The stiffest fight appeared to be in New York State. Both Republicans and Democrats have concentrated heavy artillery in a battle for control of the New York State Assembly.

The Uclans opened the scoring late in the first quarter. Funk, Ucla back, punted 13 yards to Fowler, who dropped back into his end zone to evade Chevoor, but was tackled there to register an automatic safety.

California came back to score its first touchdown in the middle of the second quarter. California took the ball on the Bruin 47-yard line after the latter had fumbled. After

Addis Ababa To Be Object Of New Drive By Invading Italians

ROME, Sunday, Nov. 3.—UP—Italy began its long expected general drive toward the heart of Ethiopia at dawn today. Over a 30 mile front Italian Blackshirt divisions, accompanied by native troops, undertook the greatest offensive so far on the northern front. Makale was the first objective.

ROME, Nov. 2—UP—Italy's mechanized army in Northern Ethiopia will start to roll southward towards Makale, key to Addis Ababa, at dawn Sunday, authoritative sources said tonight.

The advance, carefully prepared by weeks of road building, will be along a 50 mile front. The main or center column will move from the Aduwa region over the hastily built Italian road toward Makale.

TANKS IN ADVANCE

Midget tanks, holding two men each and no higher than a man's outstretched arms, will provide a spectacular advance guard for the marching infantry. Little resistance is expected and the Italians believe they will be able to complete the occupation of Makale without a military engagement.

From Makale, the Italians will be able to stage the next phase of their campaign by forging a trail a few miles farther south towards Lake Ashangi and the beginning of the modern highway, recently built by Emperor Haile Selassie, leading directly to his capital.

CENTRAL PUSH

The central push will be from near Adigrat, eastward of Aduwa and due north of Makale. Blackshirt divisions, called "the 28th of October," and the Sabauda and Sila,

LEAGUE WILL CRACK DOWN NOVEMBER 18

GENEVA, Nov. 2—UP—The League of Nations, applying a strangling boycott to Italian trade in the greatest mass effort in history to punish a war-making nation, empowered Great Britain and France tonight to attempt a peaceful solution with Italy which would avert war in Europe.

The League's sanctions committee of 52 nations adopted a proposal by Premier Paul Van Zeeland of Belgium, giving Britain and France a mandate to seek a peaceful solution within the framework of the League.

NEGOTIATIONS EMPOWERED

The League framework is essentially Article 16 of the covenant, which provides for economic, financial and finally military measures against an aggressor.

Britain and France thus are empowered to negotiate with Premier Benito Mussolini in the name of the League, asking him to end the war, under the pressure of the penalties now applied. The implication is that the two powers, if Mussolini refuses to submit, will have the right to apply stronger penalties in the name of all the nations represented.

JUDGE SYERS WITHDRAWS IN LAMSON TRIAL

SAN JOSE, Nov. 2.—UP—Superior Judge Robert H. Syer, who once sentenced David Lamson, former Stanford campus leader, to death for murder, withdrew himself from the case today at the request of the defense.

Denying defense charges of bias and prejudice against the defendant, Syer said he acted only to speed the opening of the third trial of the one-time Stanford Press executive on charges of slaying the Missouri girl who became his wife after a campus romance.

TO CHOOSE JUDGE

Syer's withdrawal involved the celebrated case in new technicalities.

Attorneys for the State and Lamson must decide within five days on a judge to preside at the new trial. In event they disagree and a disagreement is expected—the matter must be referred to the California Judicial Council which will designate a judge to sit in judgment while the [illegible] as to Lamson's guilt or innocence are renewed before a jury of his peers.

Sutro Estate Value Is Set

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2—Estate of the late Oscar Sutro, former San Francisco clubman and prominent attorney, was inventoried today at $610,551, W. O. Green, State inheritance tax appraiser, announced when he filed papers with the Superior Court. The appraisal included a $6,000 library and a $500 stock of old wines. Most of the estate was in stocks, bonds and real estate, Green said.

Sutro, vice president of Standard Oil Company, died suddenly last June while traveling in the Eastern part of the United States. He was a scion of a pioneer San Francisco family.

A substantial saving in transportation cost to the Christmas holiday traveler was announced by Southern Pacific today.

All classes of roundtrip fares between west coast and eastern and middle western points will be virtually on the same basis as summer rates, as well as the fares to Mexico City, F. S. McGinnis, vice president, stated.

For local trips between all points west of Ogden, Utah, and El Paso, Texas, he said, first class round trip fares will be on a 1.5 cents-a-mile basis, with coach and tourist fares but 1.2 cents-a-mile.

The low rates will be effective from December 12 to January [illegible] with liberal return limits.

Stock Market Uncertain In A Dull Week

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—UP—The stock market churned uncertainly this week in fairly heavy trading as professionals took to the declines and Western interests continued to buy heavily.

There was a note of caution. Tremendous advances of recent weeks, with spirited jumps into new high ground for as much as six years in some stocks, had brought the possibility of a technical reaction. But investment demand, particularly from the western sections which are reporting increasingly good business, was sufficient to prevent the market from getting out of hand on the downside.

Volume fell below the previous week with only three days showing more than 2,000,000 shares being exchanged. Midweek market dips served to quiet the trading enthusiasm and buying increased Friday when the market [illegible] forward.

Delay Sought In AAA Tax Case By New Deal Lawyer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—UP—The New Deal today placed before the Supreme Court its objection to immediate tests of the validity of processing taxes under AAA amendments which were sought by Washburn Crosby company in an appeal brought to the court several weeks ago.

The milling company, contesting taxes of $127,000, sought to hurry consideration of the AAA amendments by asking the court to consider its appeal at the same time it considers validity of the processing taxes under the old law next month.

Solicitor General Stanley Reed said the case "does not present the question [of] the validity of processing taxes under the amendments in such a way as to make it ripe for final determination."

Reed recalled that the company had obtained an injunction against the collection of taxes under the law.

Sunday evening at 7:30 a business meeting will be held by the club at the W. O. W. hall. All members are urged to attend.

Federal Work Program Report Not Optimistic

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—UP—The New Deal's four billion dollar work relief program, almost seven months under way, edged just past the half-way mark tonight in its drive for 3,500,000 government made jobs by Nov. 15.

Aides to Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, basing their statement on figures showing 1,543,185 persons working October 26, declared "about 2,000,000 needy have been taken off direct relief rolls."

Hopkins predicted the Administration's spending will become fully effective the middle of this month and that the FERA will slam shut its dole chest December 1.

The official employment figures however, were pessimistic. With 1,543,185 on Federal projects last Saturday, the net job gain was only 121,715 in the previous seven days. If two million are now employed, that means 100,000 jobs per day are being made compared with only a few more than that number in the preceding week.

AMERICA SEES NEW CARS AT FAMOUS SHOW

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—UP—America is going places swiftly but with more safety and less noise in its 1936 automobiles, presented for the first time today at the National Motor Show.

The show is the industry's premier of what is expected to be one of the greatest production periods in its history. Estimates of upwards of 4,000,000 cars have been made for the industry's turnout in 1936, and the models strewn about the spacious rooms of the Grand Central Palace show the lure the industry has created for potential buyers.

NEW MACHINES

"Motordom on parade" it is called and from the time of the doors opening—the parade was in full force with hundreds seeking a chance to see what America will drive this year.

Concisely, America—that is those who will drive new cars—will find:

A thoroughly stream lined machine. A motor car capable of great speed, although that is not stressed. A motor car beautifully proportioned and artistically designed inside and out. A machine whose stopping qualities are [illegible] more certain. A roomier car though not [illegible] having been [illegible].

A car quieter because of [illegible] mountings. A machine with dependability and [illegible] motor in turning [illegible] speed. A car [illegible] great [illegible] ments both as to appearance and to efficiency.

Action On Dairy Ordinance Delay

MARTINEZ, Nov. 2—Whether board of supervisors will be [illegible] proposed compromise ordinance relative to [illegible] in Contra Costa county at Monday's meeting appeared doubtful today.

A letter was received by clerk of the board, S. C. W[illegible] from W. E. Howe of Sacramento, inspector for the bureau of animal industry. Howe said he had placed the names of the men who had conferred with him from the county upon the proposed ordinance and asked that he be [illegible] the list.

He said he believed several changes should be made in the ordinance and said that inasmuch as cattle testing is not being conducted in this district at this time he felt there was plenty of time to draft a suitable compromise ordinance.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—Secretary Hull's next reciprocal trade agreement will be with France. Announcement of the pact is slated for around the middle of the month. . . . General Johnson's excited outcries about the influence of Professor Felix Frankfurter in the New Deal are giving the inner circle a quiet laugh. With great relish they recall his equally excited efforts to get [illegible] made the Harvard law professor to accept the post of general counsel of the NRA. . . . Both Secretary Ickes and Harry Hopkins [illegible] sick during the [illegible] the President [illegible] fully: "Boy, I'll [illegible] were [illegible]." . . . Secretary Morgenthau now knows what it means to be on the receiving end of a government-controlled press. Landing in dictator-ruled Portugal he remarked casually to reporters that he understood their country was enjoying [illegible] prosperity. Next morning's papers quoted him at great length to the effect that Portugal was the best ruled and most prosperous country in the world.

NO SPEEDING

Legislation prohibiting the manufacture of motor vehicles with a speed above 50 or 60 miles an hour may be offered at the coming session. Senator Burton K. Wheeler and Representative Sam Rayburn, chairmen of the Senate and House Interstate Commerce committees, have discussed such a bill. . . . Despite the fact that no President of the United States ever has made a flight, the Navy keeps a special amphibian plane [illegible] ready for his use. . . . Washington's winter convention season will get under way November 18-20 with one of the most important gatherings of the year, the annual meeting of the Conference of Mayors. All cities of 50,000 and over will be represented. General topic of this year's convention will be, "Federal and Municipal Relationships." The city officials will be received by the President, addressed by WPA chief Harry Hopkins. . . . A quiet purge of anti-public power elements within the PWA has just been completed by Secretary Ickes. A number of officials, charged with holding up municipal power projects, have been eased out. . . . FERA chiefs gradually are succumbing to Washington atmosphere. The rule that when Boss Harry Hopkins boards an elevator in the FERA building it proceeds immediately to his destination has been extended to include his lieutenants, Corrington Gill, Mrs. Ellen Woodward and Aubrey Williams. Jack Baker, another assistant, refuses to permit any preference for himself, but Williams, much to the quiet amusement of his associates, takes the rule seriously.

HAPPY DAYS

Signs of the times: Steel has jumped 17 per cent ahead of last year's output. . . . More washing machines were manufactured in the last nine months than in all of 1934. They were twice the number produced in 1933 and 1932. . . . Cotton has pulled up from 18 per cent behind 1934 to a bare one per cent [illegible]. . . . Silk and rayon output are [illegible], the former 13 per cent above last year despite a marked increase in price. . . . Machine tools continue their skyward climb, zooming [illegible] per cent above 1934. . . . [illegible] production jumped to [illegible] per cent above last year's total. [illegible] went to 26 per cent more than 1934. . . . Secretary Henry Morgenthau, the Treasury boss, is telling [illegible] that one reason for the [illegible] is the [illegible] of money [illegible] being poured into U. S. securities. . . . Senator Pat Harrison [illegible] W. Jett Lauck, liberal economist, to write a report for his [illegible] on the NRA. Lauck [illegible] new industrial [illegible] wage scales and strict control of profits.

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 2 (UP)—[illegible] Hollywood is too much like a sailor who spends his vacation rowing around Central Park lake. To retain success in films they must be excluded from this continuous round of movies and movie talk—and [illegible] natural.

So believes Margaret Sullavan, who knows quite definitely what she wants and gets it.

"When you reach the point in your Hollywood career where, besides acting in films, you talk them, eat and sleep pictures, then your time is limited," Miss Sullavan said the other day between scenes of "So Red the Rose."

"When that times comes, you might just as well call it quits, for then that your perspective is lost and you've got to regain it or [illegible].

"I know, because I've seen it happen to too many important players in Hollywood. I for one feel I have done all that is expected of me when I give eight, and sometimes more, full hours to my studio work.

"When that's over I want to get as far away from the movies as I can. If I go to a dance I want to escape from movies and movie talk. Certainly I don't want to spend the entire evening discussing cameras, angles and picture personalities and then pose for candid cameras. That's too much like the sailor rowing on his day off.

[illegible] wheezy old liner Kin Lung, as it plows down the China coast between Hongkong and Singapore. Under the polite veneer of the [illegible] runs a tremendous dramatic undercurrent of fierce loves, hates and sinister intrigues, to which the typhoon and the sudden [illegible] pirate raid are fitting background.

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT

By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 2. Mildred Pell Holmsen stole the show from Joan Crawford at the Ritz-Carlton's crystal room the other day. Mrs. Holmsen is the young lady who was eased out of a Reno night club when she walked in barefooted and in shorts. All eyes in the crystal room had been focused on the glamorous Joan and her husband, Franchot Tone, when in strolled Mrs. Holmsen dressed in navy blue silk pajamas and without a hat—A new way of puttin' on the ritz. The latest wrinkle in whoopee making, it seems, is to get a party together, hire a private ambulance and go tearing through the streets regardless of speed laws and traffic regulations. I always thought the ambulance came after the joy ride. Max Reinhardt is in town to start rehearsals for the new Franz Werfel music-drama, "The Road of Promise"—Reinhardt may also have a bit of [illegible] the New York World's Fair in 1939.

Month [illegible] critics, tired of the Pulitzer Prize, have formed the New York Drama Critics Circle, which will award an annual prize each Spring to the best play of the season. Aren't the boys cursed enough, are they? I stopped Madame Schumann-Heink at the Hotel Madison the other afternoon long enough to hear her say that with the signing of her film contract she feels as if her career was just starting all over again. Madame Schumann-Heink doubtless wants to give her great-grandchildren a mark to shoot at. On 41st Street, only one block away from Grand Central Terminal, is a blacksmith shop. It's been there ever since Lexington avenue was a dirt road. There are no more hansom cabs, but the mounted police still [illegible] in business. A moderately funny burlesque on radio is the new play, "Crime Marches On"—Mary Rogers, the handsome daughter of the late Will Rogers, makes her first leading appearance, and Elisha Cook, Jr., gives a very intriguing performance. What pleased me most, however, was the hanging of a radio announcer in the last act. The anti-noise campaign is having a good effect.

UNDIMMED: The Statue of Liberty has just passed her forty-ninth birthday, but the lady of the New York harbor is going stronger than ever. Attendance at the famous beacon has soared during the year, and more visitors than ever before are making the ferry trip from the Battery to Bedloe's Island.

Last Summer, the crowds were so dense, in fact, that elevator service going down had to be discontinued. No public announcement was made of the order [illegible] that visitors would be [illegible] away. Even [illegible]. Visitors are [illegible] to walk up the ten stories to the pedestal in order to avoid waiting in line.

Freedom's symbol still has its adherents.

Minzer Tells D.A. About Tear Bomb

MARTINEZ, Nov. 2—Al Minzer of Martinez today related to District Attorney Francis P. Healey facts surrounding taking of a tear gas bomb to the Rancho San Pablo. The bomb was seized in a raid on the rancho by detectives of Healey on October 27.

Healey made no comment after Minzer had detailed facts of the case, other than to say that Minzer will be summoned before the grand jury at a hearing that will probably be held the latter part of next week.

Healey is also to present to the grand jury for inquiry the seizure of a roulette wheel and a slot machine in the rancho raid, claimed to have been confiscated in previous raids and ordered destroyed by courts.

Burlesque Show Has New Trouble As Chorus Sues

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2—UP—Fresh troubles descended upon the "Life Begins at Minsky's" revue here today when 14 chorus girls filed breach of contract suits demanding $4,500 in salaries they assert are due them.

Only yesterday Sally Sweet, dancer, tearfully dismissed battery charges against Frank De Armand, pianist-composer with the show. De Armand was accused of pushing Sally against a dressing room wall so hard that she suffered brain concussion and partial paralysis.

Through their attorney, [illegible] Cubin, the chorus girls attached scenery and box-office receipts of the three performances of the show today.

The show was scheduled to leave for Chicago after tonight's performance. The girls assert they were hired for 20 weeks and have worked but 10 weeks, and weren't offered transportation back to Hollywood, where they were hired.

Joseph Weinstock, manager of the show, denied he had broken contracts with the girls. He said he had offered to take the girls to Chicago, but that they did not want to go. He said they were also offered their fare to Hollywood and asserted that if any contracts were broken it was the girls who broke them.

ANYTHING but LOVE

by JANET DORAN

© 1935 by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

When Johnny Anthony turns up in the little town of Burntwood, no one knows just who he is or where he came from. Alma Whittaker, daughter of Lawson Whittaker, drugstore owner and one of the town's leading citizens, falls in love with him, but Johnny raises the secret of his past as a barrier between them. Alma's father wants her to marry Sig Borndike, who is connected with the local bank, but Alma turns him down. The next day, Sig leaves on a trip to Chicago, and Lawson Whittaker mysteriously disappears. Johnny discovers that Whittaker is in financial difficulty, that Sig has been lending him support, but has now refused to back him further. When he learns that Alma has rejected Sig, he concludes that that is why Sig has deserted her father. Could Whittaker have deliberately tried to barter his daughter for a loan?

"I'm so s-s-scared," she sobbed. "So terrified, Johnny! Something dreadful must have happened to Dad!"

CHAPTER VI

JOHNNY telephoned Alma to learn if she had had any news.

"Johnny," she whispered shakily over the wire, "come back right away! Some men are here. I can't explain now—it—please come quickly!"

His thoughts were bleak as he drove to the Whittaker home, but he was smiling determinedly as he stopped the car in the driveway and walked up the steps, eyeing the two cars parked just ahead of his in the drive.

Alma met him as he entered the house, and his throat tightened at the relief that crowded the fear out of her face at sight of him.

"Johnny!" she sobbed. "I'm so glad you've come!" She clung to his lapels.

"Alma," he said softly. "Alma darling, brace up. What's happened?"

She turned a white, tense face toward two men sitting at the table in the living room, busy with legal-looking papers.

"These men," she said tremulously, "claim they have a mortgage on this place, and notes covering the full value of Daddy's store as well as everything else we own." She paused and drew a deep quivering breath. "They claim, Johnny, that all the notes and mortgages fell due yesterday and now—they're going to foreclose!"

JOHNNY advanced toward the two men, his mouth a thin line.

"Of course," rumbled the oldest man, whom Johnny recognized as a lawyer named Flan, allied with Roy Carrvall and the financial group in the town. "If you could give us any hint, Miss Whittaker, as to the whereabouts of your father, or had any idea when to expect him back, we could hold things off for a very short while. But it is unlikely that he would have left like this without letting us know, or leaving word with you, had he had any possible means of straightening out his affairs."

"I . . . I . . ." Alma floundered helplessly. "You'll just have to wait until my father comes back!"

"And when will that be?"

"Look here," Johnny broke in angrily, "isn't it enough that she's nearly frantic with worry over her father, without you two buzzards swooping down to heckle her! Take your papers and legal claims and get out of here! You're gaining nothing by persecuting Miss Whittaker."

The two men shrugged, gathered up their papers, and made their way to the front door. There, Flan turned to cast a parting shot.

"If Lawson Whittaker isn't back to settle these claims by noon tomorrow, the legal action will go through — regardless of feminine hysterics!"

As soon as they were gone, Alma crumpled up in a deep chair and burst into a storm of tears.

"I'm so s-s-scared," she sobbed. "So terrified, Johnny! Something dreadful must have happened to Dad or we would surely have heard from him by this time!"

Johnny found room beside her in the chair, gathered her in his arms, and tried to talk away her hysteria. Her head rested on his shoulder. Soon, dusk filled the room with shadows.

Finally, Alma stopped weeping, and began to breathe slowly, regularly. She had fallen asleep.

Johnny carried her over to the big divan, and tenderly laid her down. He slipped her shoes off, and threw a soft woolly robe over her. He bent and touched his lips gently to her cheek.

"Poor little kid," he muttered softly.

WHEN Alma awoke, it was morning, and rain was pattering against the windows. For a long moment, she lay trying to remember. Then, with crushing force her troubles broke over her.

"Johnny," she whispered, turning her head slowly. "Johnny . . . are you there?"

There was no answer, and Alma sat up quickly, throwing off the woolly robe. Clear and sharp, the memory of last night returned. She had gone to sleep in Johnny's arms, her head on his shoulder, her fingers locked tight in his. She had no recollection of his placing her on the divan.

She jumped up, and the robe slid to the floor. She stumbled over it in her haste to find out what had become of Johnny—whether he was still in the house.

She found Margaret, the cook, busy setting the breakfast table.

"Have you seen Mr. Anthony?" Alma asked breathlessly. "Has he been here this morning?"

"He's gone, Miss Alma. He left word he'd taken your car, and that you were to stay by the telephone until you heard from him. Oh, Miss Alma, hasn't there been any news yet?"

"No—none," Alma said wearily. She turned and walked numbly, stiffly, up the wide stairs.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

By MRS. CARL W. LONGACRE

A man died at the age of seventy-three not long ago who began to keep a diary at the age of 21 years, and continued to keep it for 52 years. His life was not consecrated to a high ideal. In the book he left he states that in the 52 years he had smoked 628,715 cigars, of which he had received 43,692 as presents, while for the remaining 585,023 he had paid about $10,132.

In fifty-two years, according to his book-keeping, he had drunk 28,786 glasses of beer, and 20,084 glasses of spirits, for which he spent $[illegible]. The diary closes with these words: "I have tried all things, I have seen many, I have accomplished nothing."

ALCOHOL DETRIMENTAL

"Emmanuel Bayr, a school director in Vienna, Austria, found that [illegible] of the disobedient and [illegible] refractory students came from homes where the parents allowed them to use alcoholic drinks. The more they drank the poorer marks they made. In Brescia, Italy, 1000 school children were observed. Of these 165 did not use alcohol. The average standing of the abstainers in the school work was the highest. Wine was the drink used. Of the work there was only fair the occasional users of wine, and the lowest average, and the daily drinkers had the largest average of poor work.

Sermon Today At Science Church

In all Christian Science churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., a Lesson-Sermon will be read today, November 3, on the subject: "Everlasting Punishment."

The Golden Text is: "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me" (Ps. 51:10). Bible selections include the following passages from Galatians 5:19, 21: "Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are these; Adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, . . . Envyings, murders, drunkenness, revellings, and such like: of the which I tell you before, as I have also told you in time past, that they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God."

A passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, is also included, which reads as follows: "We cannot build safely on false foundations. Truth makes a new creature, in whom old things pass away and 'all things are become new.' Passions, selfishness, false appetites, hatred, fear, all sensuality, yield to spirituality, and the superabundance of being is on the side of God, good" (p. 201).

LOCAL OPTION IS ADVOCATED BY SEN. SWING

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2 (UP)—Local option for the control of liquor traffic was advocated today by State Senator Ralph E. Swing of San Bernardino in a prepared statement issued at the opening of a joint meeting of Senate and Assembly committees, investigating the local situation.

He came out flatly in support of saloons in preference to the present system of control which permits children to frequent restaurants where liquor is sold.

"Liquor should be sold [illegible] similar to saloons so as to obtain proper regulation," he said. "Only [illegible] a day [illegible] on a bar while he takes his drink."

"While it is the duty of the State to regulate the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors," Swing said, "better enforcement could be obtained through local option which is the right of people in communities to vote for or against sale of liquor in their townships."

He said he opposed State handling of liquor sales on the ground it "was not in the province of the State to compete with private industry."

The joint committee went into executive session to study the problem.

LOCAL COUPLE ARE MARRIED AT ALBANY

Fuller resides at 204 Bissell avenue and the bride lives at 203 Bissell avenue.

The couple will temporarily make their home in Richmond.

Damage Reported Here In Storms

Damage estimated at more than $2,000 was reported to Richmond police yesterday morning following a severe storm Friday afternoon and evening.

A large storage shed owned by the Richmond Press Brick company was ripped from its foundations and swept into the bay. Minor damage was done at other parts of the plant.

A telephone cable in the Peres school district was snapped by the gale, tying up telephone service in that area throughout the day.

Frost has been predicted for this morning with rising temperature in the afternoon.

HERE'S TO YOUR HEALTH

By Dr FRANK McCOY
AUTHOR OF "THE FAST WAY TO HEALTH"

All questions regarding Health and Diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address Dr. Frank McCoy, care of this paper.

ADENOIDS AND MOUTH BREATHING

Everyone has adenoid tissue. It is only when it becomes enlarged that it is dangerous to health. Enlarged adenoids often accompany enlarged tonsils or swollen neck glands. The causes of these troubles are usually similar, and the three together constitute the most common of children's disorders.

Due to the location of the adenoid tissue, when it becomes enlarged it may cut off the breathing through the nose so that the child is forced to breathe with the mouth open, and usually sleeps in this position.

The adenoid tissue is a lymphatic tissue similar to that of the tonsils, but since it is situated in the upper back part of the nose, cannot be seen from the outside. Mouth breathing is the outstanding symptom that the adenoids have enlarged. A mouth that hangs open, the dull expression, a lack of pep, are all indications that the adenoids need attention. If the trouble continues for a long time, it may result in a deformed facial expression. As the teeth may become misshapen, the bony framework of the upper dental arch does not form properly and the teeth do not meet in a bite. The roof of the mouth becomes narrowed and the base of the nose broadened.

The enlarged adenoids thicken the child's lips and give him a dull, stupid look. Often the children are victims of night terrors, as the interference with breathing causes them to feel suffocated. They often snore while sleeping, or are restless and may breathe in loud snorts.

When enlarged tonsils are present the child will suffer from other catarrhal troubles, and are especially predisposed to colds and bronchitis. In some cases, the adenoids may become infected and the infection spread to the ear, causing deafness.

For many years I have claimed that adenoids enlarge mostly from too liberal a use of the carbohydrates, but many physicians who know more of surgery than they do of diet have ridiculed my theory, however, I am pleased to note that no less an international authority than Sir Arbuthnot Lane, the distinguished English surgeon, points out that, "In England and America, where children are fed plenty of starches and sugars, adenoids are more prevalent than elsewhere."

The treatment for adenoids should not be delayed after having been discovered, as they not only endanger the child's health, but may lead to incurable malformations of the jaws, palate, nose and face.

In most cases, enlarged adenoids will be reduced to normal by short fruit fasts followed by a non starchy diet, but if the adenoid tissue has greatly enlarged it may sometimes be adviseable to use surgical measures.

After the adenoids are corrected, the child should be trained to use the nose for breathing, and be given systematic breathing exercises.

An article on ADENOIDS is now available and will be sent to any one desiring a copy. Request the article by writing in care of this newspaper and enclose one large, self-addressed envelope and ten cents.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Backache)

Question: Mr. H. J. C. writes: "Several people have told me that whenever they are rid of intestinal gas that backache disappears. Another person was telling me that he discovered that whenever a headache is present, the enema will end it quickly. Thought you might be interested in these observations."

Answer: The presence of excessive gas in the large intestine is very often the cause of backache; in these cases the ache is a reflex, being caused by pressure brought on by the accumulation of gas. I often recommend the enema for headache and in the average headache, the patient will be relieved within half an hour simply through taking the enema and then resting for a short time in a darkened room. The headache resulting from constipation which is so rapidly relieved by taking the enema, is brought on by reflex action. I am always pleased to read of actual experiences such as those you give and I wish to thank you for your courtesy in forwarding them to me."

(Pan-Broiling)

Question: Mrs. I. Q. asks: "I do not have an oven for broiling and am wondering how I may broil meats. I have sinus trouble and thought perhaps there is some other kind of food I may use instead of the meat."

Answer: Try pan-broiling your meat, cooking it in a dry frying pan, and turning it rapidly to prevent burning. Do not add oil, lard, fat, or grease. I have not found a satisfactory substitute for meat when the patient has sinus trouble. Most of the substitutes commonly used instead of meat such as cheese, milk, eggs, or nuts will not bring about the same successful results which follow the moderate use of meat and the patient gets along better in every way if meat is used as the main protein during the treatment of sinus trouble. I do not know if you are aware that I have an article on SINUS TROUBLE which you may obtain by writing to me in care of this newspaper. The article will be sent to anyone asking for it. Enclose one large, self-addressed envelope and ten cents.

Again Answering Some Questions About the New Pa-Va-Ex Machine

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

THERE is nothing like a column of this sort to make one really believe that "hope springs eternal." Those of us who are even ordinarily well, have no conception of the terrible anxiety which weighs down some suffering mortal who finds a limb or a function gradually losing its usefulness.

Hence, the mere mention of a new discovery or development like Pa Va Ex (PAssive VAscular EXercise) machine brings some pathetic letters. Mr. L. H. K. has a severe pain under the right knee and down into the calf of the leg when he gets up after sitting awhile. The leg is shrinking, being already considerably smaller than the other.

DR. CHRISMAN

Of course, there is circulatory trouble of some sort here, and since he gets short of breath easily the heart pump likely needs some help. It is probably not a sciatic trouble, but an obstruction somewhere in an artery.

Mrs. A. H. has high blood pressure, arterio-sclerosis, and angina, according to her physician's diagnosis. These three complaints are part of one condition and if the arterial burden could be relieved, she would be much more comfortable and generally better.

An Ankle Condition

Mrs. B. T. gets her trouble through swollen ankles and burning feet. Her mother had the same distress, but the element of heredity that Mrs. T. suspects comes only from having the same sort of tissues and possibly the same build that her mother had. Usually, these cases of swollen feet carry too much weight, and a thinning diet with rest in bed and the feet kept elevated for a considerable period is usually necessary before anything else can be done.

In this case the burning sensation probably comes from the excess blood in the veins, though others may have the burning without the swelling. There is little to be done with any one of these cases by medicine or local treatment until the systemic condition can be changed and the arterial net work cleared.

Nothing can be definitely promised from the use of the Pa Va Ex machine without knowing the individual case better, but some rather remarkable things have been accomplished with it.

The apparatus was developed in the Department of Surgery, University of Cincinnati, Ohio, and was announced for "clinical use in promoting the establishment of an adequate collateral arterial circulation in human extremities." Drs. Mont Reid and Louis Herrmann were collaborators in the machine's development, and an inquiry addressed to them at the University will bring a pamphlet of information.

Needs Trained Handling

We have aready been told that the distribution of the units would be limited owing to the nature of the disturbances which can be benefitted, and to the fact that most circulatory troubles mean a generalized or associated systemic disease which must be treated first.

The machine is very expensive and sufficiently intricate to require trained manipulation, so a hospital or public health center is the logical place for one.

The Exerciser Unit works on a vacuum principle and the extremity to be treated is placed in a glass boot sealed by soft rubber cuffs. Thus the gradual and rhythmic alteration of the air pressure about the limb is automatically controlled. It is kept usually below the existing atmospheric pressure and thus approximates the pressure of the higher altitudes.

The idea is not a new one, indeed it has been played with for over a century, but Dr. Herrmann designed the present unit in 1932. Since then other workers have suggested further methods of modifying the circulation by dilating or stretching muscular tissue. Remarkable results have been attained in opening up collateral circulation, even after the major arterial pathways had been disabled. This is a partial answer to Mrs. W. J. Y., and Mr. W. V. L.

Carter's '97 Scandal Is Resurrected

By TALBOT LAKE

A SCANDAL which rocked the country in the mauve decade is brought once more into the light as Oberlin M. Carter, now seventy-nine, steps out to announce a finish fight for vindication in a case which put him in Leavenworth four years. Carter, a glamorous figure, was court-martialed, as a Captain of the U. S. Engineering Corps, on a charge of having embezzled $2,169,159. He was found guilty, was dismissed from the army, and later served his four years. That court martial happened in 1897; now almost three decades later he insists he was framed and wants the satisfaction of vindication from the Military Affairs Committee.

One of the chief reasons why his case caused such an uproar in the nineties was Carter's background. He had been a brilliant student at West Point and became the son-in-law of R. F. Westcott, wealthy New Yorker. Carter had a great flair for the wearing of clothes and the social graces, so that when he was assigned to Savannah as supervisor of river and harbor reclamation work the social greats of that city went wild over him.

It is said he changed his clothes five times a day; in succession, a morning suit, a bicycle suit at noon, a driving coat, a riding habit, and then evening clothes for dinner. The ladies made a great to-do about his manners and dress. Carter was really having a good time.

His social prowess came to the attention of the Federal Administration, however, and this started his downfall. He was appointed military attache to the London Embassy. Before he left, his successor, crusty old Commander E. Gilette, was already in office.

Carter made a great fuss over the Commander, offering his home in Savannah rent free and wanting to do him some great favor. After Carter left, Gilette was puzzled over this unexpected friendship. He went over the records of the office and, finding record of a long retaining wall as built and paid for, went out to investigate. He couldn't find the wall. He finally reported that some $7,000,000 worth of work could be found only on the maps.

Fall Cleaning Leaves Hands In Bad State

By JACQUELINE HUNT

HANDS are always in need of reconditioning around the end of October. Moving, painting, housecleaning and planting bulbs in your garden for spring blooming are sure to leave your hands rough and dry. Even such light-sounding tasks as cleaning out clothes closets and rearranging the books in their shelves leave their marks.

Nails are apt to be broken. Hurried and none-too-thorough washing and drying cause hangnails and make the skin so red and coarse you wonder if it can ever be improved. Don't worry, it can, but do not delay in getting about your reconditioning treatments.

More thorough, but less frequent, scrubbing is the first rule. Get a pure, bland soap and a hand brush that is not too stiff. Use them vigorously at least once a day, paying special attention to the cuticles, nail tips and knuckles. Rinse as carefully as you scrub, then dry thoroughly and massage your hands with a whitening, softening lotion or cream.

MISS HUNT

Much hand washing can be eliminated if you will learn to wear gloves when you go about housework. Not heavy rubber gloves, but loose canvas ones that you can pull on when you dust, sweep and move the furniture. Rubber gloves are useful, too, especially when you do such grubby tasks as washing windows or scrubbing.

Any effective hand beautifuying program begins with a good manicure. If your nails are broken and cuticles ragged, or if your nails have a tendency to split about this time of the year, try an oil manicure. Follow your regular plan for a manicure — removing old polish, filing and shaping, cleansing, soaking and working back the cuticles.

Then soak the hands in hot olive oil or a specially blended oil, massaging thoroughly to work the oil into your rough, dry skin. Next cut a strip from a roll of absorbent cotton and split into thin layers. Saturate these with warm oil and wrap around each fingertip and the thumbs. You can't do much during this operation, so you might rest your hands on a towel while you daydream, or you might go so far as to take a beauty nap. The longer the oil-soaked cotton thimbles remain on your fingertips the greater the benefits.

After this the hands are washed in warm soapy water, dried thoroughly and your nail polish applied. When the polish is thoroughly dry, more cuticle oil may be worked around the cuticles and under the nail tips—only as much as is readily absorbed—then the hands massaged with a good hand lotion or balm. If you wish to be extra nice to your hands follow this hot oil treatment once a week.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "Please tell me the correct way to use cleansing cream.—Edith."

Cleansing cream should be used before your soap and water cleansing at night. For renewing your make-up and refreshing your skin during the day the cream may be used alone. The most economical way of using the cream is to squeeze a pad of cotton out of cold water, then dip it into the jar of cleansing cream and smoothing this over the neck and face.

The cream is left on your skin in a thin, even film that melts readily and picks up the grime and cosmetics on your skin. Wipe away the soiled oil with cleansing tissues or soft old linen and apply a second film of cream if needed. Now wash carefully with bland soap and tepid water, or, for your mid-day cleansing, follow by patting briskly with pads of cotton moistened with skin tonic or astringent to remove any cream that remains on your skin.

QUESTION: "I have a very good complexion and spend a lot of time to keep it that way, using creams, cleansing and so on. Several months ago I saw directions in your column for a honey facial that I would like to try. Would it be asking too much for you to reprint them, as I have lost the clipping? —Kathleen."

First cleanse your skin thoroughly with soap and water, or if it tends to be dry, with cleansing cream. Follow with a sponging of mild skin tonic. Smooth a small amount of softening cream around the eyes and lips. Blend enough almond meal with one-half cup honey to make a stiff paste and apply as a mask. Leave on the skin 20 minutes to half an hour, then remove by sponging with warm water. Finish with a light application of softening cream (for dry skin) or with skin tonic for oily skin.

Old Fashioned Bonnets Fostered By Milliners

By IRENE VAIL

New York — Not content with hooding us like friars or sophisticated Red Riding Hoods, fashion seems determined to foist bonnets upon us. How well she will succeed remains to be seen, but knowing the term to be elastic, the chances are that bonnets will go over.

The slim silhouette about which there is such a dither does not mean that the sleeves are shaved to pencil lines, but that, on the contrary, the silhouette appears slimmer because of the sleeves.

It may be necessary to clarify the term "bishop's sleeve." Be that as it may, it will do no harm to mention that bishops and peasants are of one mind when it comes to sleeves, excepting that the peasant likes more fulness top and bottom and sometimes omits the wrist band—which the bishop never does.

Among the many types of sleeves now elbowing their way into favor the so-called bishop sleeve seems to be in the lead, because it's a sleeve type applicable to so many kinds of fabric and frock.

Fur sleeves are much in evidence. All manner of elaboration of detail occurs at the shoulder line. You cannot fail to have noticed the same trend in dresses. The slender silhouette is achieved because of the way pleats and draperies are controlled. Shirrings and spiral arrangements conspire to keep the outline slim.

Take, for instance, Vionnet's new type of short bolero coat in Persian lamb, the sleeves having fulness below the shoulder line. These fur boleros may be worn over a long cloth coat or, for early wear, with the street dress.

Vionnet gives the bolero another boost on its way to becoming established as important. Done in Persian lamb to be worn over a furless coat or suit or cloth frock, this new type of short jacket is advocated as it is so in tune with the silhouette of the moment. It is basque-like in fit, ending at the fitted waistline, and has none of the boxiness sometimes associated with the bolero. At the same time it preserves the narrow neckline and the generous sleeve width that characterizes the silhouette of the day. The little jacket is a success for night and day.

Modes and Manners

QUESTION: "Is it proper for a hostess to help a visitor remove a coat and hang it up.—Mrs. V. S."

ANSWER: If the visitor is a woman, yes.

QUESTION: "Does a girl have to have enough evening dresses so she can wear a different one each time that there is a social? I am a high school girl.—M. D."

ANSWER: A girl of high school age with a single evening outfit ought to consider herself lucky. If she happens to be a popular girl with two such outfits, she is doubly lucky, of course. But a young girl who thinks that popularity depends upon variety in dress is mistaken. Rather it may cramp her style and spoil her chance for enjoying herself, if she allows herself to brood over having to wear the same dress more than once. A clever girl can make one dress do for the entire season, simply by changing the accessories that go with the dress. For instance, she can buy another handkerchief in a different contrasting color, and carry out the color scheme in gloves, slippers and bag. Or she could change her hairdress, necklace or wear earrings once and leave them off the next time.

School Child Needs Lunch That Is Tasty

By JUDITH WILSON

COOKING for the school child is no easy task, as every mother knows. There is seldom time for an adequate breakfast. Luncheon, if taken at home is usually a hurried affair and no matter how carefully planned the box lunch is not entirely satisfactory.

Some mothers solve the problem by making an outline of their children's daily food needs, then supplementing the inadequate breakfast and lunch with an after-school snack. This eliminates the necessity for a heavy, nourishing supper before bedtime.

While we heartily approve of the light, after-school lunch, it is advisable to make the child's noon-time meal as inspiring and complete as possible. If he lunches at home a balanced hot meal can be served, with gay china or linen to make the food attractive.

SCHOOL LUNCHES

Fruit Cup
Hot Liver Sandwiches with Bacon and Tomato
Fluffy Tapioca Cream
Wanut Cookies Milk

Tomato Juice
Cheese Snacks
Baked Stuffed Potatoes
Slivered Green Beans
Baked Bananas Cookies
Cocoa

If he must carry a lunch box, then get an attractive one, equipped with a vacuum bottle so he can carry hot soup or a warm drink to school each day along with hearty sandwiches, a simple dessert, and fresh fruit or a salad.

Then the after-school snack can consist of his extra glass of milk served plain, as cocoa, or an egg-nog and oven-fresh cookies or crackers and jam; or simply a large bowl of assorted fruit — whichever is most needed to balance his menus for the day.

The following recipes will encourage the most lagging appetite:

Hot Liver Sandwiches

Put cooked liver through a food chopper, season well with salt and pepper and a grating of onion if it is liked. Moisten enough to spread smoothly with meat broth or milk. Spread on buttered hot toast, cover with thin slices of tomato and bacon and broil until the tomato and bacon are cooked. Serve at once.

Walnut Cookies

Cream together 1½ cups sugar and ½ teaspoon salt and 2 unbeaten eggs. Sift 1½ teaspoons cream of tartar and 1 teaspoon soda with 3¼ cups flour. Add some of the flour mixture to ½ cup raisins, then blend the rest with the creamed mixture and ¼ cup water. When thoroughly mixed add the floured raisins. Drop the dough in pieces the size of walnuts about 3 inches apart on a greased cookie sheet. Sprinkle the tops liberally with chopped black walnuts. Bake in a hot oven about 8 minutes. This dough may be stored in a covered bowl in your refrigerator so that fresh hot cookies may be made at a moment's notice. This makes 8 dozen cookies.

Peanut Cookies

Beat the yolks of 2 eggs until thick and lemon colored. Add ⅛ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup evaporated milk and 1 teaspoon lemon juice and blend well. Beat in 2 cups confectioner's sugar a little at a time, stir in 4 cups finely chopped peanuts and then fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the 2 eggs. The mixture should be very stiff. Drop from a teaspoon onto waxed paper. Bake in a moderate oven until brown, cool before removing the cookies from the paper. This makes 3 dozen.

Stuffed Potatoes

Scrub and bake 3 large potatoes until done, cut in halves, scoop out and mash. Add ¾ cup hot milk, 1 teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons butter. Beat until fluffy. Add ½ cup diced ham bologna (or chopped ham) to 1 cup medium cream sauce. Fill the potato shells with the creamed mixture and top with the mashed potato. Brown in a hot oven about 15 minutes. Fried apple rings make a nice accompaniment.

Bad Habit Replaced By Good One

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

LITTLE ANN has a habit of opening the refrigerator and poking around. Sometimes she goes away and leaves the door standing wide open. Her mother does not know how to break her of the habit. She has spanked and scolded. She has even thought of getting a lock for the door, but for obvious reasons this would be most impractical for herself.

MRS. GOWARD

Little Ann apparently, is not after food. "I never have seen her take anything from the icebox," her mother explained. "As far as I know she goes to the refrigerator to annoy me. I can't understand what she wants there."

Nor does anyone else know for certain what little Ann wants in the refrigerator. But for a mother, a guess is in order in a situation of this kind. Any guess will do, because guessing involves putting imagination to work. In this frame of mind, she automatically is brought closer in understanding to the workings of the child's mind.

A logical assumption is that Ann goes to the icebox in imitation of her mother, this particular action on mother's part having caught her fancy. There are many reasons why it should have appeal for a child under three. At this stage, a child has the urge to manipulate to put-and-take, as it were, but no skill and no understanding of the job undertaken. Seeing mother fetch and carry things from the icebox gives him an idea for a game and something to do.

My advice to Ann's mother is, don't scold, don't nag, don't spank. You have to replace a habit before you can break it. Toward this end, ask Ann to "put this butter in the icebox for me, like a good girl," the next time you find her poking around in it. Not only will she do it gladly, but she will remember to shut the door and come away at once. Also try calling on her to fetch and carry to and from the refrigerator when her hand is elsewhere. Teach her a useful habit with respect to the refrigerator.

MODERN WOMEN

Going Around With a Married Man May Be Innocent, But It's Dangerous

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

IF THERE is anything under the sun that tickles a young girl it is to be thought sophisticated. The role of a woman of the world is to her the star role in life. It's because of this that she sees, or says she sees, no harm in friendships with married men. That sort of thing, she tells you is being done, which is reason enough in her inexperienced mind for doing it.

Parents who are struggling with a daughter going through that particular phase of her development have my sympathy. They need infinite patience and a good deal of insight into human nature and character in the making.

MRS. MARTIN

"My dear Mrs. Martin: My daughter, who is twenty-three and a very stylish, pretty girl, is going around with a married man. Her father and I are distracted because of it. She says he does not make love to her, that they are simply good friends, and that we are old-fashioned to object. The man's wife is away a good part of the time, as she is in business, and my daughter says she knows her husband takes her out and doesn't mind. Won't you please help me talk common sense into my girl, who really is a good girl and does not mean any harm? Her father just scolds and goes on, and she doesn't pay any attention to him, as she knows he idolizes her. The man always seems decent enough. He brings my daughter home in his car, but she never asks him in. I cannot understand his wife's not minding if she knows — and she's supposed to. What should we do, Mrs. Martin? "Mrs. John M."

There's a Difference

Going out to dinner occasionally with the husband of a friend who is away, and with the friend's full knowledge and consent, is one thing, and "going around with a married man," as you put it, is another. In the first there is no harm, in the second there is danger, and in all probability harm to someone.

I have known wives who were generous with their husbands during their absence and who really had no feeling against their dining with women friends, but I have never known a wife who was not the first to blame the women friends for anything that might occur. It's the woman always, not the husband, who has double-crossed her. Any way you look at it, the position is never a very comfortable one for a woman.

No girl advances her cause by going around with a married man, even to the extent of consoling him in his hours of loneliness during his wife's absence, and with her consent. Those who know the circumstances may understand, but those who are not in the know form their own conclusions, and they are always uncharitable ones.

Scandal Still Hurts

What other people think does matter, although we are constantly telling ourselves—and the world—that it doesn't. There are evil-minded busybodies who think evil on the slightest provocation, and who don't need such an opportunity to spread unpleasant rumors. Why provide them with such sure-fire ammunition?

A wife is asking a good deal of a friend when she expects her to jeopardize her reputation for no better reason than to keep another woman's man from boredom during her absence. She's also taking chances with her own peace of mind and showing either bravado or indifference.

If a girl must console someone it had much better be a lonely bachelor than a lonely benedick. The harm that may come out of consoling the grass widower may reach her only. Suppose she learns to relish her role and finds great happiness in being his companion—what happens then? The husband in this, or any, case does not have to be a villain or even a flirt to bring great unhappiness to the girl. He may be a nice person taking advantage of the opportunity to provide himself with a little perfectly innocent amusement, but the chances are the girl has deprived herself of other companionship, only eventually to lose his.

However one looks at it, going around with a married man is a mistake—if nothing worse. Girls almost always have to find this out for themselves, usually at considerable cost.

A jelly maker needs to have foresight. If she has, she undoubtedly will remember to press a small piece of string into each paraffin top before it hardens, giving her something to lift it by when the time to serve the jelly comes around.

OLD PEOPLE find way to keep breath wholesome

Halitosis (bad breath) quickly yields to Listerine, safe antiseptic and deodorant

Either because of stomach disturbances, food fermentation, or the wearing of false teeth, old people frequently have halitosis (bad breath). No wonder others consider them a nuisance.

But now Science has found that the regular use of Listerine will often overcome offensive mouth odors due to the fermentation of tiny bits of food on mouth, teeth, or dental plate surfaces.

This safe antiseptic and quick deodorant works quickly. It cleanses mouth, teeth, and gum surfaces. Halts fermentation and putrefaction, a major cause of odors, and then counteracts the odors themselves.

Try using Listerine every two or three days. See how much more wholesome it leaves your mouth. How it sweetens your breath. Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo.

CARDINALS BEAT SANTA CLARA SQUAD

two incomplete passes, Blower punted 41 yards to Cheshire who returned the ball 25 yards to the Bruin 30-yard line. Funk then hit right guard for two. On the next play, Funk fumbled the pass from center and lost nine yards, placing the ball on the 23 yard line of the Bruins.

KICK BLOCKED

On third down, with plenty of yards to go, the Uclans decided to kick. Funk received the ball, standing very close to the line of scrimmage. At this instant [illegible] Lutz of the California team rushed in and blocked the kick, [illegible] caught the ball in mid-air and [illegible] 21 yards to score. [illegible] the extra point.

The second California score came in the fourth quarter. Late in that [illegible] intercepted a pass from Schell and took the ball to the [illegible] 16-yard line. After Chapman had made four yards over left tackle, Blower tried the same hole and was stopped dead.

PASS SCORES AGAIN

On third down, Blower fell back and hurled a pass to Jack Brittingham to score a touchdown. Blower completed the job by kicking the extra point.

It was the educated toe of Monk Moserip that again won a ball game for the crippled Stanford Indians. Last week, Monk's two field goals gave the Cardinals a victory over Washington. Yesterday his kick in the fourth quarter gave the Cards their victory.

GOOD GAME

The Santa Clara team put up a whale of a fight from start to finish, stopping Bobby Grayson, All American Stanford back. The Santa Clara team drew first blood at the start of the second quarter. Stanford had the ball on the Santa Clara 26-yard line as the result of a penalty for illegal clipping levied against the Broncos. After Grayson had passed to Vigna to the Santa Clara 22-yard line, and after Bobby had been held for no gain for two downs, he dropped back and tried another pass. But this time Seramin was among those present. The flashy Bronco back leaped into the air, snagged the pass and waltzed down the side-lines for a mere 90 yards to score the touchdown. Flaschi's kick was bad.

STANFORD SCORES

Just before the half ended, Stanford came back to tie the score. Hall made a bad kick, which was downed on the Santa Clara 24-yard line. Vigna on the first play lost yardage at left tackle; Paulman made two at right guard. Then Todd, who replaced Grayson, dropped back and passed 21 yards to Coffis for first down on the Bronco 2-yard line.

On two plays, Paulman carried the ball over the line to score the Stanford touchdown. Moserip failed to kick the extra point.

SCORE TIED UP

With the score tied 6-6 the two teams engaged in a titantic struggle on the greensward, with neither team getting the advantage. Time after time Grayson was stopped by flashy tackles; time after time Stanford men held the Broncos back.

Then came the score in the fourth quarter that won the ball game, a score that was featured by a thrilling march by the Cardinals down the field.

Stanford had the ball on its own 33-yard line late in the third quarter when Vigna attempted a lateral. Falaschi broke up the play and the ball was the Broncos on the Stanford 33-yard line. On the first play, Falaschi threw a long pass to Dutton who was downed on the Stanford 3-yard line.

THREATEN TO SCORE

It was now first down for the Broncos with only three yards to go for a touchdown. Stanford dug in to defend its goal line. On the first play Falaschi hit center to gain a yard. On the next play he attempted an end run, to be smeared for a two yard loss. On third down, Seramin lost eight yards on an attempted play around left end. On fourth down, Falaschi fumbled and recovered the ball after a loss of five yards, to give Stanford the ball on its own 18-yard line.

The Cardinals took the ball and then went to town. Grayson made 11 yards on two plays for a first down; Grayson made 11 yards on two more plays; after Paulman failed to gain, Grayson went around left end for six yards and then made four more through left tackle for first down on the 50 yard marker. Vigna made three yards and then Grayson dropped a pass into the hands of Vigna for ten yards and a first down on the Bronco 37 yard line. As the quarter ended, Grayson failed to gain at left end.

ANOTHER PASS

As the fourth quarter opened, Grayson tossed another pass to Vigna for 15 yards. After Stanford had been penalized five yards for backfield in motion, Grayson passed again, this time to Topping who made it first down on the Bronco 12-yard line. After Grayson had made two yards and Paulman three, Grayson again took the ball and made two more.

On fourth down Moserip stood back and place kicked a field goal to win the ball game.

IRISH WIN THRILLER

In one of the most thrilling games on record, the Notre Dame squad defeated Ohio State 18 to 13 at Columbus. With five minutes to play, the Ohio team was leading 13 to 0. Notre Dame then turned on the heat and scored two touchdowns. With a minute to play, the Rambling Irish made another to win the ball game.

In other Eastern games, Fordham and Pittsburgh played a scoreless tie, Mississippi State defeated Army 13 to 7; Princeton walloped Navy, 26 to 0; Tulane defeated Colgate, 14 to 6; Louisiana State defeated Auburn, 6-0; Temple was defeated by Michigan State, 12 to 7; Alabama defeated Kentucky, 13 to 0; Northwestern defeated Illinois 10 to 3; Kansas defeated Oklahoma, 7-0 and Penn lost to Michigan, 16 to 0.

Defense Of P.I. Is Problem For War Secretary

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 2—(UP)—The important issue of Philippines military defense was the paramount topic on every tongue in Manila today as Secretary of War George H. Dern of the United States prepared for conferences with Manuel L. Quezon, president-elect of the new Philippines Commonwealth.

Among the first of a large delegation of United States officials and world diplomats converging upon Manila to attend Quezon's inauguration November 15, Dern arrived yesterday aboard the U. S. S. Chester.

An imposing demonstration of watercraft and airplanes attended his welcome. Saluted at the admiral's landing, Dern reviewed the 31st U. S. U. S. Sends Two Army Observers To African War

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—UP—The Ethiopian-Italian conflict was at last recognized today by the U. S. Army as a full-fledged war when it assigned observers to both the Ethiopian and Italian commands.

The duty of the two young American officers will be to observe the tactics of the opposing forces and report to the army high command on the latest technique of the profession.

Captain John Meade, 32 year-old field artillery officer, was instructed to go to Addis Ababa as military attache to the legation there.

Army officials would not deny that purpose of the move was to have him available to go to the front as a military observer. It is the first time this country has stationed a military observer in Ethiopia.

The department [illegible] that Major Norman [illegible], now assistant military attache at Rome, would report some time between November 15 and January 1 to the Italian army on the Ethiopian frontier as an official military observer.

The sales tax problem ranks next to the State income tax question in Government efforts to obtain a fair division of the [illegible],000 paid annually by the public in taxes.

LEAGUE WILL CRACK DOWN NOVEMBER 18

DEADLINE SET

World history was made in Geneva today. The steering committee of 18 and then the full committee of 52 adopted a proposal setting Nov. 18 as the date on which the nations will refuse to buy Italian goods, stifling Italy's life line of trade.

In addition an embargo on sale to Italy of "key" products, such as minerals and eventually oil and coal, will be attempted. There is also the embargo on export of arms and munitions to Italy, already put into effect by most of the nations.

AID IS ASKED

In the midst of most of the League's activities, a telegraphic appeal was received from Ethiopia asking financial aid from the nations to enable it to prosecute the war with Italy.

"The Ethiopian government," the appeal said, "respectfully begs the members of the League of Nations to grant it financial assistance to defend Ethiopia's peaceful existence against a state which has had recourse to war and whose attitude is a manifest and undoubted menace to world peace."

Ethiopia's war material, the appeal said, was virtually non-existent when Italy launched its attack.

Gale Damage Is Repaired In Bay Area

washed from a lighter had disappeared. The barge was located miles from its base, sunk in deep water, but no trace of the missing boxes of dynamite was found. Lacking detonating caps, the explosive was not considered especially dangerous.

11 RESCUED

Eleven men three longshoremen and eight seamen of the freighter Condor were saved from the storm-tossed bay waters by the crew of the coast guard patrol boat Gaviota in a rescue that matched mid-sea emergencies for danger and thrills.

Small shipping, warned by storm signals that flew from Canada to Mexico, sought shelter early and apparently escaped the heavy blow.

The rain and wind added materially to the damage done crops by the freezing temperatures which began Tuesday when a heavy blanket of frigid air spread itself over the western slope. Eggplant, tomatoes, onions, and other vegetables were frost-bitten or rain-drenched from the fertile Oregon fields to the irrigated Imperial valley tracts. Some damage to the Southern California citrus crop was reported.

SNOW FALLS

Power and communications lines were blown down in many places. Daly City, San Mateo, Ingleside and other San Francisco suburbs were without lights for a time.

Snow fell heavily in the high Sierras but California State highway crews kept the mountain passes open and traffic was not interrupted. Airplanes were grounded during most of the storm.

The unseasonably low temperatures will prevail for several days from Washington into Southern California, weather forecasters said. But the skies will be clear and the wind will lack the gale force which caused the principal damage of the Friday and Saturday disturbance.

Addis Ababa To Be Object Of New Drive By Invading Italians

will form the spearhead of operations.

The blackshirt battalions, "23rd of January" and the army division "Gavinani," assisted by native troops under General Pirzio Biroli, also will strike southwards from a position to the right of the central column, farther toward Sudan and Lake Tana.

READY TO STRIKE

Another Italian army, composed of two native battalions and artillery, is ready to strike from the plateau overlooking the torrid Danakil desert near Mt. Mussa Ali, near the junction of French Somaliland, British Somaliland and Ethiopia.

The purpose of the Mussa Ali division will be to protect the left flank of the advancing northern army and perhaps to carry out an independent drive towards the Djibouti-Addis Ababa railroad, Ethiopia's only outlet to the sea.

ITALIANS REPULSED

ADDIS ABABA, Nov. 2, UP—Bands of half naked Ethiopian warriors, armed with rifle and spear, are inflicting serious losses upon Italian forces at the edge of the Danakil desert, messages to the capital said today.

The Italian troops have been harassed by the attacks to such an extent, Ethiopian advices claimed, that daily infantry and airplane retaliation is being attempted.

CHARGE AT DAWN

The Ethiopian warriors are operating in the Mussa Ali sector, in the corner formed by the juncture of Ethiopia, French Somaliland and Eritrea. They charge on Italian detachments just before dawn. Their greatest activity is in the Aminil section, a land of swamps and barren wastes.

Each night, the messages said the warriors make their raids between 3 A. M. and 5 A. M. looting Italian camps and then disappearing to hide in the desert throughout the day. In retaliation, Italian planes fly overhead, letting loose with bombs and machine guns whenever they discover hiding places of the raiders.

The Italian morale has been impaired to such an extent by their losses, according to the messages, that the Italian army is moving out an infantry screen to protect its Mussa Ali base from further depredations.

Parole Officer C. C. Coxe of San Francisco said following Silva's arrest that the man is claimed to be a parole violator.

HOT CARGO EMBARGO IS IN DISPUTE

ing time, hoping for a peaceful settlement of the Gulf dispute.

The unsettled maritime labor situation also held the S. S. Jefferson Myers in port without a crew of sailors at San Francisco. The union sailors refused to sign for a cruise to the East Coast unless assured of return transportation in event the vessel was affected by strike conditions enroute.

HOT CARGO ISSUE

The "hot cargo" issue has been in the forefront of capital-labor disputes on the western coast since the peace pact which ended a three month strike in July, 1934. Employers carried the question in one instance to Federal Arbitrator M. C. Sloss and obtained a ruling that longshoremen must handle any cargoes shipowners want moved.

Both sides have appealed to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. The longshoremen asked him to explain a statement about sanctity of contracts. The employers asked him to bring pressure on the I. L. A. to maintain its agreements by handling "hot cargo."

The Katrina Luckenbach was the first of several vessels due on the West Coast from the New Orleans area. The S. S. Point Montara is expected next week and longshoremen are expected to apply the embargo to the freighter unless the gulf situation is adjusted in the meantime.

But regardless of any settlement of the current dispute, the hot cargo question remains as a constant source of friction between the Pacific Coast shipowners and their union employes and is one that can at any time lead to a shipping strike.

Severance Tax On Fish Scored

SANTA CRUZ, Nov. 2—A severance tax committee from the State legislature of which T. H. DeLap of Richmond is a member, was told today that the State's fresh food fish industry is threatened with extinction by a diminished supply of fish and is in no condition to pay the extra cost of a "severance tax."

Louis Beverino, manager of the San Francisco International Fish Company, who acted as spokesman at the hearing, told the committee that of the $35,000,000 annual catch by fishermen of the State, 80 percent is represented by sardines, most of which go to reduction plants to make fertilizer. On sardines and shell-fish, he said, the State is already levying a tonnage tax which goes direct to the general fund.

Assemblyman DeLap, and Clifford Kallam, of Watsonville, the chairman, were present at the meeting.
